WELCOME TO ZOO'S...

RUDEST

ISSUE EVER!

Hi, guys

If you like things raunchy, you've come to the right place! After 590 Issues, we're scaling new heights of cheekiness – with an exclusive shoot from TV's rudest show, the sauciest-ever jokes, naughty celebrity babes and loads of sexy snaps!

It's definitely got my rude seal of approval. But a word of warning: things are about to get very hot, so make sure you're sat down in a safe place. Enjoy!

*Love, Leah

LEAH FRANCIS' RUDE NEWS!

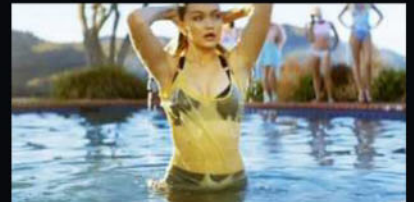

WINDOWS TO YOUR WORLD

"If you're installing Windows 10, make sure you're careful. You don't want to get caught out like that bloke whose wife found his entire porn collection scrolling across the screen when he left it updating overnight. Er, busted!"

MILEY'S BOOBY BEST

"My phone wouldn't be worth its weight if I couldn't have a perv over Miley's latest saucy Instagram snaps. She seems to hate clothes as much as I hate underwear – and who can blame her? It's great feeling free!"

GIGI HADID'S GLORIOUS BEST

"You need to watch Calvin Harris' video for How Deep Is Your Love. She might not be baring all, but there's something so sexy about a girl emerging out of the water in a tight top!"

TV's rudest show is back
(and we've got its hottest new stars!)

"Everyone on our show is horny!"

EXCLUSIVE! Megan Rees and Megan McKenna are the new girls on MTV's raunchy reality show – and they stripped off for a red hot ZOO shoot!

MTV
ex ON THE BEACH 3
CELEB SPECIAL

HI, GIRLS. HOW EXCITED WERE YOU ABOUT YOUR FIRST-EVER ZOO SHOOT?

MEGAN MCKENNA I couldn't wait. I've always wanted to be in ZOO!

MEGAN REES It's something different and I was really excited about it. When you called, I was thinking, "Really? Me?"

DID YOU KNOW A LOT ABOUT MEXICO BEFORE YOU ARRIVED?

MR We didn't even know we were going to Mexico until we arrived at the airport!

MM I didn't have a clue. I turned up at Heathrow with two massive suitcases and was asked to hand over my phone!

HOW HARD WAS IT TO HAND OVER YOUR PHONE?

MM Impossible. I'm obsessed with apps like Instagram, Snapchat and Twitter. I get told off all the time.

MR I have a permanent dent in my finger from being on my phone too much!

TELL US SOMETHING WE WON'T FIND OUT ABOUT YOU ON THE SHOW?

MM I went to theatre school. I trained my entire life in London and I had to audition to get into all the schools. That probably won't come across on the show! ➔

MEGAN REES!

MR I'm going to study Hair & Make-up at a top London university for three years, starting in September. There's more than meets the eye! LOVE ISLAND HAS JUST FINISHED. TELL US WHY EX ON THE BEACH 3 WILL BE EVEN BETTER...

MM There's more drama, and I honestly think they had it easy compared to us.

MR We have some really raunchy dates, like having to cover each other in clay. It's very hands-on.

IS THIS GOING TO BE THE RUDEST SERIES OF THE SHOW YET?

MM There's no doubt about that! All the producers said that, too. The drama on series two was PG-rated compared to our drama. Every day there was something!

MR I think we have better-looking people on this series, too!

LOVE ISLAND FEATURED QUITE A BIT OF SEX AND SOME PRETTY RAUNCHY SCENES. CAN WE EXPECT THE SAME FROM YOU GUYS?

MM Oh, we have more! Everyone on our show is horny! Tequila was like Viagra for the boys: they were obsessed!

MR There is even some girl on girl action...

HOW DID YOU TRY TO HIDE THE "ACTION"?

MM It feels like a house party, but everywhere is fixed with cameras. You do forget that they are there because you just get used to them.

MR No one thought, "There are cameras there, I'm just going to have sex". We just had sex. It happened just like a normal one-night stand would happen.

WITH YOU ALL BEING PENNED IN ONE VILLA, WERE THERE MANY ARGUMENTS?

MM Everyone was wanting to

TUESDAY
11 AUGUST

Ex On The Beach
MTV, 10pm

kill everyone else after far too many Jägerbombs!

MR Going on dates with someone you hated and just couldn't stand was especially bad. Sometimes, they would make you do that on purpose! They would try and make it as awkward as possible!

DID IT EVER GET SO BAD YOU MISSED DATING ON TINDER?

MM I have never used Tinder! I created an account to have a look around, but my sister shouted at me to delete it!

MR Where I'm from there are so few people, it means you know pretty much everyone else on there. And that means you don't want to say no to them, as that's a bit harsh!

WHY EX ON THE BEACH IS TV'S RUDEST SHOW, ACCORDING TO...

JESS IMPIAZZI

Series 2's bustiest babe reveals what happens when you manage to sneak away for some off-camera fun...

WHAT MAKES EX ON THE BEACH RUDER THAN OTHER REALITY SHOWS, JESS?

On other shows, people don't have a history. With Ex, there's plenty of sex because the history is there and you can easily start romping. Everyone wants revenge and to p'ss off their exes!

DID ANYTHING MEMORABLE HAPPEN BEHIND THE SCENES WE DIDN'T SEE?

During boot camp, Adam was using the monkey bars. He didn't notice a pole in his way, hit it and went flying! ANYTHING NAUGHTY THE CAMERAS DIDN'T CATCH?

They wanted to broadcast the rudest moments. If we tried to sneak off to the bathroom, we were told off! We couldn't get away with anything behind the scenes!

ARE YOU LOOKING FORWARD TO SERIES 3?

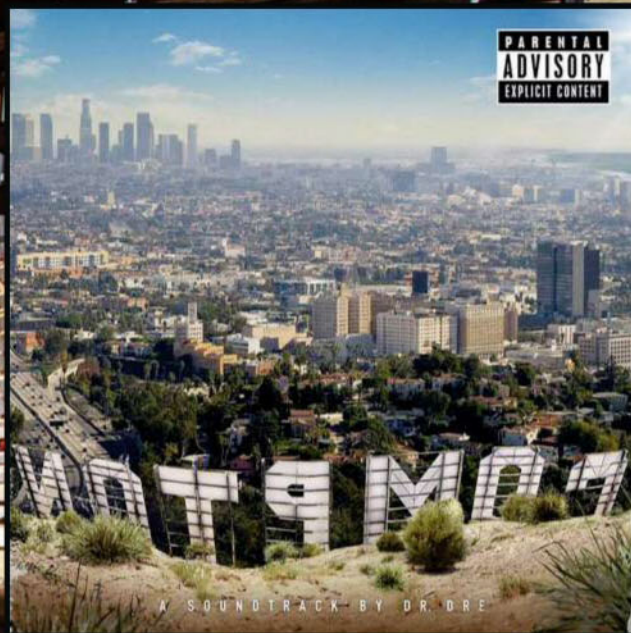

Definitely! I watched the first series and loved it, so went on the second. I can't wait for sex and scandal to kick off! IF YOU COULD DO IT AGAIN, WHERE WOULD YOU GO?

This series is filmed in Mexico – I was fuming about that! I'd like to do it in Barbados: you could bring on any ex and I'd be fine! I'd spend all my time in a bikini, getting my tan on!

The Godfather of rap IS BACK!

Dr Dre returns with his first album in 16 years! ZOO gives it a listen and looks at his journey to get here...

Sixteen years is a long time in music. The last time Dr Dre released an album – 1999’s inaptly-titled 2001 – he was kept off the No1 spot by, er, Steps. But he’s back with Compton – 16 tracks of his finest-ever work.

Compton: A Soundtrack by Dr Dre hit our ears last Friday, exclusively on iTunes and Apple Music, as the undisputed Godfather of rap looked to firmly drop-kick Kanye out of the limelight. Featuring the biggest names in hip-hop, including Ice Cube, Kendrick Lamar, The Game and Xzibit, the album should be handled with care, as it’s pure fire (see our track-by-track, right).

Dr Dre said he felt inspired and started working on the album while producing N.W.A docudrama Straight Outta Compton, a film detailing the trials and tribulations of the infamous proto-gangsta rap group. “I’m really excited about it,” he revealed recently. “At first I was nervous about putting a blemish on the N.W.A legacy, but now it’s incredible.”

The flick comes out on 28 August, and is produced by Dre and Ice Cube, who said the movie will “make you laugh, make you cry and make you shout”. Dre also paid credit to the crew who have put the movie together over the past six years, saying: “They had their ups and downs while filming, but people will appreciate the story, especially the people of Los Angeles.”

The album hypes up the film even more, and for the Doc, the 16-year wait has been well worth it. But just what has he been up to during his hiatus? ZOO dug into the life of the man behind the music...

So, what has Dr Dre been up to for 16 years?

COMPTON: track-by-track

1. Intro

Epic build-up. A good start.

2. Talk About It

Dre's best-ever beat?

3. Genocide

(feat. Kendrick Lamar)

Chilled but aggressive.

4. It's All On Me

Softer still. Dre mellowing with age?

5. All In A Day's Work

No! Funkiest bass line ever!

6. Darkside/Gone

(feat. Kendrick Lamar)

Posthumous cameo from Eazy-E.

7. Loose Cannons

(feat. Xzibit)

Xzibit pimps this track!

8. Issues (feat. Ice Cube)

Ice Cube as raw as ever.

9. Deep Water

(feat. Kendrick Lamar)

As gangsta as it comes.

10. One Shot One Kill (Jon

Connor feat. Snoop Dogg)

Snoop's still got it!

11. Just Another Day

(The Game)

Fast, slick, perfect!

12. For The Love Of Money

So. Much. Bass.

13. Satisfaction

(feat. Snoop Dogg)

A real head-nodder.

14. Animals

A welcome chill track.

15. Medicine Man

(feat. Eminem)

Eminem's best-ever work?

16. Talking To My Diary

Emotional... for Dr Dre!

CHRONIC
2015-STYLE!

CLUB

ZOO'S
STANDOUT
TRACK!

1999-2007

Dre made a return to his gangsta roots with the incredible 2001, released rather confusingly in 1999 (no, we've no idea either).

Following this, the doctor swapped the mic for the studio, instead using his talents to produce a long line of hip-hop bangers. Dre produced 50 Cent's anthem In Da Club, and also twizzled the knobs and pushed the dials to make The Game's How We Do. During this "downtime" rumours flew around about an N.W.A reunion, an album with Snoop Dogg and even one with Timbaland.

2008-2012

Beats by Dr Dre, the trendiest headphones in music, arrived in 2008. With an eye-watering price tag, nobody could ever anticipate then just how big the brand would become.

Swinging back onto the scene in 2009, Dre gave his voice to Eminem's Crack A Bottle, but not happy with just rapping, he also got stuck into Em's album Relapse, producing 19 of the 20 tracks. In 2012, he headlined Coachella alongside Tupac, with the departed rapper making a return in a hologram even R2-D2 would be proud of.

2013-2015

Work was already underway on an N.W.A film alongside bezzie ex-bandmate Ice Cube, which delighted fans everywhere. Dre then crushed their dreams by announcing he'd never release Detox, a collab with Eminem.

By the end of 2014 he'd sold Beats by Dr Dre to Apple for more than $3 billion, becoming the first billionaire in hip-hop, and even managed to get himself a job as a radio show host. On his show he announced he'd actually finished an album inspired by the N.W.A film, and that it'd got all of his mates on it.

Man United's rude kit road-tested!

ZOO sees what all the fuss is about with the Red Devils' revealing 2015-16 women's shirt!

Louis van Gaal found getting back into the top four a tight squeeze last season, and Adidas has carried on this trend with its new Man United women's shirt.

Featuring a low-cut neckline, more open than United's 2014-15 defence, it has divided opinion among the fans.

Never ones to sit on the bench, we took to the streets to get your verdict. But before that, we decided it needed a proper test – and who better than super hot ZOO babe Ellis Attard to take it to the limit?

WORDS: Steven Eccot

Get this free sexy wallpaper at zootoday.com!

What YOU said

Ash, 23, Leeds

"As a Leeds fan, I hate all things Manchester United. However, I do like Adidas and think it's a decent kit. I can't picture Wayne Rooney in it, though!"

Amy, 26, Birmingham

"It makes it girly with the low-cut neck and it being fitted. It's nice women have the choice to go for a sexier version of the shirt."

Nicki, 27, London

"I think it's good women have the option to go for their own fitted shirt. I wouldn't wear it myself though, as I'm an Arsenal fan! I'll admit it's a nice fit!"

ZOO's security man Don, 24, London

"I think it's a brilliant design, especially with the new Adidas deal. I support United, and I think we're going to nab second spot this season – with the help of this kit!"

Ellis says...

"I like it because it's not manly – it's quite feminine. The only problem with it is I support West Ham! I'd definitely wear it to play a game of football in my garden. It's low-cut and I feel sexy in this. I wouldn't in a man's one!"

Minion mayhem!

Giant 40-foot yellow beast causes carnage on a busy Dublin road!

The Minions
from Despicable
Me are only 105cm tall

Despite having taken nearly $1billion at the box office since the release of Minions, the squeaky-voiced yellow fellas have shown they aren't content with just taking over our cinema screens.

On a regular sunny afternoon last week, motorists in Dublin were suddenly faced with a serious problem when a 40ft Minion took to the streets to try to advance their plans for world domination.

Fortunately, it was just a huge inflatable which had broken free from a nearby funfair, but that didn't stop it bouncing over cars and causing long traffic jams.

One witness described it as "a bit of fun", but Dublin councillor Paul McAuliffe tweeted: "It's a despicable breach of health & safety."

Nobody was hurt, and local police managed to quickly deflate the situation and let the air out of the balloon before things got too out of hand.

EXCLUSIVE TO ZOO!

Mayweather Jr vs Berto is go!

People are complaining about Floyd Mayweather Jr's choice of Andre Berto for his 49th fight, but that's not new. People whinged before the Manny Pacquiao fight, saying it was six years too late, and before that about the Miguel Cotto bout. People love to complain!

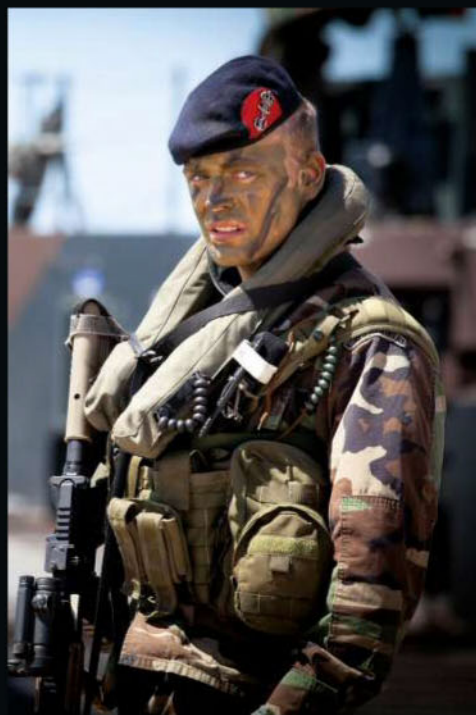

But Mayweather Jr could fight a milkman and you'd pay to see it. He's got that drawing power. It's not about the opponent: it's about him.

Mayweather Jr's fights are educational, and Berto is a good friend of mine. He's a huge underdog, but I know he'll give it a good go. And in boxing, anything can happen.

It's unfortunate Amir Khan has missed out again, but rumours say Mayweather Jr is in negotiations to sign a three-fight extension with Showtime. That should be music to Khan's ears.

He needs a win over either Keith Thurman or Kell Brook – and that should guarantee a Mayweather Jr match-up.

EMAIL YOUR QUESTIONS FOR DAVID TO HAYEMAKER@ZOOTODAY.COM

IN NEED OF A HAYEMAKER THIS WEEK... DUTCH ARMY

I'm appalled the Dutch Army is suffering such a shortage of ammunition, soldiers have to make "bang, bang" noises during training. Who's in charge over there? Have they been to too many "coffee" shops?

You get some great kickboxers from that part of the world, but it sounds like they don't have the same high standards when it comes to their military.

Cheap island

Cristiano Ronaldo bought his agent Jorge Mendes a Greek island as a wedding present, which is a very nice gesture. But when you really think about it, Ronaldo is pulling a fast one because with the problems with the Greek economy right now, he probably got it for a rock-bottom price. It's like getting your mate The Sopranos boxset from HMV the day it was closing down.

I hope he's not put his agent in debt by giving him that!

Windows.XXX

Windows 10 got off to a flyer, automatically making some poor bloke's entire porn collection into a screen saver. The worst thing? It was his wife who discovered it!

How do you explain that? That's one glitch Microsoft has to fix and fast, otherwise who knows what might be floating around on PC owners' screens everywhere!

ASK DAVID!

Who are you picking to win the title?

JASON MINTER, via Twitter
After their Community Shield win I'm going with Arsenal. I know the Community Shield doesn't mean anything when it comes to the league, but that was more about Wenger finally beating Mourinho. And he owes him for all that "specialist in failure" guff.

Pound-for-pound queen

I was blown away by Ronda Rousey's 34-second destruction of Bethe Correia. The fact she's getting rid of challengers in such clinical fashion shows how she's dominating affairs. She's the Serena Williams of the fight game.

You've got to put her among the top pound-for-pound fighters in the world, including the men and all combat forms. In fact, I think she could compete with most of the men in her weight division!

Wave rider!

Daredevil motocross rider Robbie Maddison conquers one of the world's gnarliest waves – on two wheels...

Some of the world's best surfers regard Teahupo'o in Tahiti as one of the scariest places to ply their trade. There, waves can reach heights of more than 30ft and are often cited as some of the "thickest" on the planet.

So imagine their faces when James Bond stunt double and freestyle motocross champ Robbie "Maddo" Maddison showed up and surfed its swell on his motorcycle.

The stunt was part of a new video called Pipe Dream, in which he can be seen taking to the water on a custom KTM 250 SX motocross bike.

This was fitted with special water skis to the front and rear wheels, while the rear tyre was swapped for a bespoke rubber unit with large, steamboat-like paddles.

All Maddo had to do was nail the throttle and blaze across the water like Jesus on a jet ski.

"When the wave broke behind me, I thought that might be the end of my life," he told Surfer magazine. "I've never felt like I was in the wrong place at the wrong time more than I did there."

No, Maddo, it was the right place at the right time: your video is epic!

of the week!

Precinct Seven Five

Most policemen are put on this Earth to serve and protect. Others unashamedly abuse the system. Disgraced detective Michael Dowd definitely fits the latter category.

In the 1980s, Brooklyn was a dangerous place. Drugs and shootings were commonplace, yet the ghetto was the US' richest neighbourhood – and Dowd was keen to exploit it.

Starting small, he'd arrive at the homes of dealers who would buy his silence, but as time ticked on and greed grew, he found himself protecting New York's most notorious gang... in exchange for millions.

From epic highs to dramatic lows, follow the tale of "the dirtiest cop in US history" in this unmissable film (and read more on p30!) ★★★★★ settling down isn't as daunting a prospect as she once thought.

Also featuring a hilarious cameo from a pre-broken nose WWE star John Cena and an effeminate LeBron James, it's one that will suit all comedy tastes. ★★☆☆☆

Here's the bad news for Adam Sandler's latest comedy: films based on videogames rarely live up to expectation. For every Need For Speed, there's a Street Fighter or a Mortal Kombat or – God forbid – Super Mario Bros.

The far-fetched story sees aliens misinterpret video-feeds of classic arcade games as a declaration of war, attacking Earth using the games as modes for their assault. Enter four grown-up nerds – Sandler, Josh Gad, Kevin James and Peter Dinklage – to save the day using the skills honed back in the day.

There are semi-chucklesome laughs and decent special effects scattered throughout, but what should have been a modern-day Ghostbusters – crammed with 80s nostalgia – ends up like just another recent Sandler production: safe, predictable – and pretty bang average. ★★☆☆☆

The Hot List

The Knick

Don't be too quick to shun this period drama about the professional and personal lives of the staff at New York's Knickerbocker Hospital during the early part of the 20th Century (trust us, it's certainly not Downton Abbey). Flutter Professional gambler John has an agreement with his wife: win or lose – just be honest. But when John's usual bookie is replaced with sultry Stan, he is lured into a different type of wager; bets that involve emotional or physical pain – with very high stakes. This 2011 black comedy has been re-released and is well worth taking a punt on (fnarh) second time around. ★★★★★

If you're after an all-hell-breaks-loose, barbaric action flick featuring lots of blood, bullets and a stunning, fearless female heroine (a mainly bra-less Salma Hayek), this could be for you. Just overlook the plot (basically half-inched from Die Hard), underdeveloped characters and relentlessly distracting gunfire, and you're in for a treat! ★★★★★

"I WAS A COP AND A GANGSTER. BUT I THOUGHT I WAS GOD"

Disgraced police detective Michael Dowd explains how robbing petty change from dealers' homes turned him into a millionaire...

In the early 1980s, New York Police Department detective Michael Dowd discovered he could make extra cash by exploiting local drug dealers. By the end of the decade he was a millionaire, providing protection for New York's most notorious gangs.

In 1994 he was caught and imprisoned for 12 years. Now the subject of documentary Precinct Seven Five tells ZOO about his life of lawlessness...

A breeding ground for corruption

"If you say 'Brooklyn' to Brits, you might think of a cool location. But let me tell you, Brooklyn in the 80s was anything but hipster: it was a warzone.

"Between Brooklyn and the Bronx, you couldn't move for violence and drugs; disease was rife due to needle sharing. We were officers in our early twenties dealing with 1,000 shootings per year in our precinct alone. It was beyond dangerous.

"The violence was commonplace, but the Palm Sunday Massacre springs to mind as being one of my most shocking memories. Ten people were shot, all of whom were murdered in one home. After that, nothing fazed me. It became normal to arrive on a scene where eight people were shot in one location – and it was all to do with drug money. Young police officers were expected to do jobs not even a robot could perform.

"Brooklyn was the epicentre of New York's crack and heroin epidemic. Young people were getting high, so I decided to get rich. Sure, I made the wrong choice, but there was a lot of money to be made from the situation. And I simply seized the opportunity."

From cop to gangster

"I started fairly small, stealing bags of money from drug dealers' houses, but that escalated quickly. When I saw how easy it was to do, I stole more and more. I thought to myself, 'Maybe there's some way I can make big money from this?' When I got a new partner, Kenny Eurell – who got a taste for the lifestyle – there was no stopping us.

"The most violent gangs – like Manhattan's La Compania – offered $24k upfront just to talk. So we started protecting

"I began to have fun with my money"

"I won't give you apologetic bullsh*t them. By this point, we were making hundreds of thousands of dollars. And then I began to have a lot of fun with that money. I'd go to Atlantic City on a whim with a fistful of money. Or I'd just up and go to the Bahamas or the Cayman Islands. I even owned a condo by the ocean. Looking back, I thought I was untouchable: I thought I was God."

The comedown

"It all came crashing down when my so-called loyal partner, Kenny, wore a wire and worked as a police informant, eventually leading to my arrest. He now lives under police protection, and he escaped prison. It was so hard. It felt like someone cheating on you in a relationship.

"I'm not angry with him, but it angers me that he said he wished he'd never met me. In the three years we worked separately, he got involved in a drug conspiracy, and I stuck my hand in to help him get off. And then he goes and wears a wire to save his pension and rat on me."

"I really didn't think I'd ever get caught. I kept my enemies close and made sure I watched what everyone was getting up to. I didn't have any sense of fear about going to prison – it honestly came as a complete surprise to me."

A reformed character

"During my 12 years inside, I wasn't given any preferential treatment. I was told to keep my head down, but eventually I had the run of the place and was making allies with the inmates purely because I got to know the ropes.

"One incident was odd, though. I ran into a guy with his arms in shackles and suddenly realised I'd arrested him on the outside. He was a major drug kingpin, and there he was, arms tied up, kicking a phone at me asking whether I could call his wife for him.

"It was a weird moment of clarity – I felt like I was on his side. Perhaps that's because I saw myself as both a gangster and a policeman.

"There's not much corruption in the NYPD these days, and I ended up co-operating with them in my own way. I mentioned that I could teach them how to catch people like me. They liked the idea, and so far they've arrested around 60 officers using my method. But am I sorry? Sure, what I did was shameful and my mother's still not proud about things. But you're not going to get sappy, apologetic bullsh*t from me.

"I have a glint in my eyes when I talk about my past. Truth be told, it was exciting."

Britain's hottest export shows why she's top of ZOO's rude tree...

By now, you'll know this is clearly ZOO's rudest-ever issue. And obviously only one person crossed our minds to help front 20 pages of pure naughtiness – the bona fide sex bomb that is Leah Francis.

Leah is a ZOO institution, which is essentially up there with the Queen, but it doesn't stop her from revealing her love of latex and how much she dislikes underwear, all while bursting out of some very skimpy outfits. Bonza...

HI, LEAH! HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT PRESENTING ZOO'S RUDEST-EVER ISSUE?

I'm absolutely delighted – thanks for having me! You must know I love shooting for ZOO, as it gives me an excuse to be even ruder than I normally am.

OUR PLEASURE. WHAT MADE THIS SHOOT PARTICULARLY RUDE?

I love the see-through bras I got to wear. They're very sexy – and then I got to ditch the lot, allowing me to show off my most intimate parts. That's quite filthy really, isn't it? ➔

I'm actually starting to get into underwear – I've begun to build my collection. I love suspender belts and stockings now and it's definitely something that's come to me with age. You'd never have caught me in them a year ago...

WHAT'S THE BEST THING ABOUT GOING COMMANDO?

That it's definitely riskier. If you go out wearing a short skirt with no pants, you just feel free – especially when you're on holiday.

SO HOW DO YOU COVER UP THE FACT YOU'RE SANS UNDERWEAR?

Personally I don't go out in a tiny dress with my boobs bursting out anymore. I much prefer a long tight dress with a slit right up to my thigh: it's classy, but I can seductively peel it off to reveal myself wearing nothing. Stealth-rudeness is far naughtier in my eyes...

raunchy shoots wrapped in latex and with all sorts of toys. I'd definitely give her a run in the rudeness stakes, though.

Perhaps you could tempt Jodie into doing this with me before the year is out?

OK, HOW WOULD YOU IMPRESS THE JUDGES?

I'd be bringing my A-game, baby: nothing but myself and a banana split with ice cream. I've also got a bit of a rubber fetish – I can't get enough of the feel of it on my skin.

YOU'VE GOT OUR VOTE!

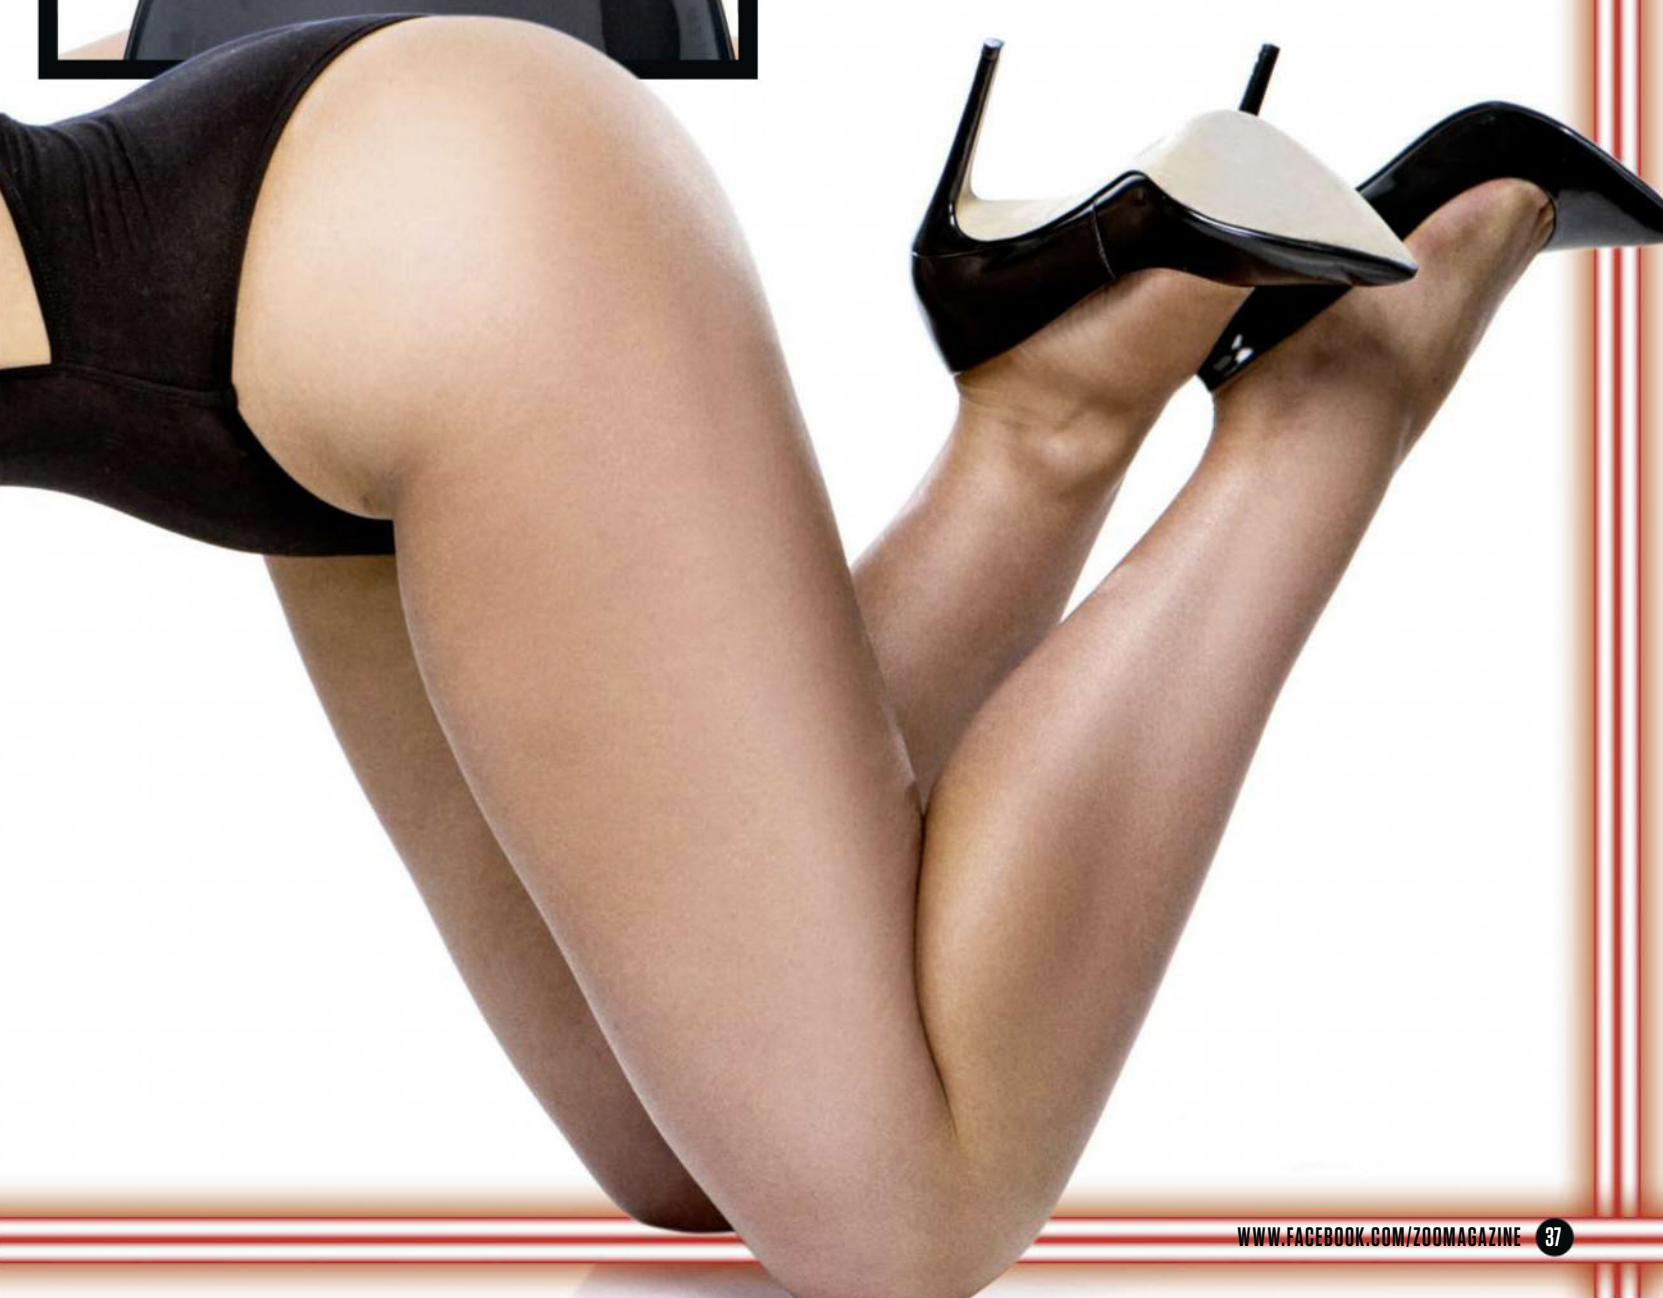

WE'VE PICKED OUR FAVOURITE RUDE STARS IN THIS ISSUE. WHO WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

Well you can forget Fifty Shades Of Grey – that just wasn't rude enough for me. They'd better up their game for the second film. I have been watching Penny Dreadful and Billie Piper is very rude in that. Her character has had sex with everyone – that's the kind of storyline I like. ➡

ANY OTHERS?

Rihanna's video for *B*tch Better Have My Money* is pure filth. I enjoy S&M-themed shoots. Rihanna is outrageously sexy when she's in control.

WHAT MAKES A PERFECT RUDE GIRL IN YOUR EYES?

Watch out for the quiet ones. The people who mouth off about how dirty they really are mostly turn out to be crap in bed. And then you've got the girls like me who can't wait to get the Twister mat out. We're the best.

WHERE IS THE RUDEST PLACE YOU'VE VISITED ON YOUR TRAVELS?

I've got to say Thailand. It's really risky – you can actually get in serious trouble for indecent exposure and the beaches are so beautiful you just can't keep yourself off them when the sun goes down. I guess the risk of ending up in jail adds to the thrill.

WHAT ELSE HAVE YOU BEEN UP TO?

I tend to cause a lot of mischief and get very drunk – which makes me quite the flirt. In the bars, you'll often see me pushing people off the stage so I can get a chance on the pole – and then I'm like Batman spinning around it at 100mph.

WE'RE GLAD TO SEE ALL THAT TRAVELLING HASN'T PREVENTED YOU BEING RUDE ON THE INTERNET...

Of course not! I just need to get myself a new camera and then I can take it even further. Just the other day I was doing some very sexy nude mirror shots in the hostel I'm staying in, when I noticed there was a bloke sleeping opposite the mirror...

THE BEST, BIGGEST AND FUNNIEST STORIES FROM THE WORLD OF SPORT!

JEFF STELLING'S...

GAFFERS AT

The Soccer Saturday host picks through the rudest manager feuds likely to kick off this season

WAR!

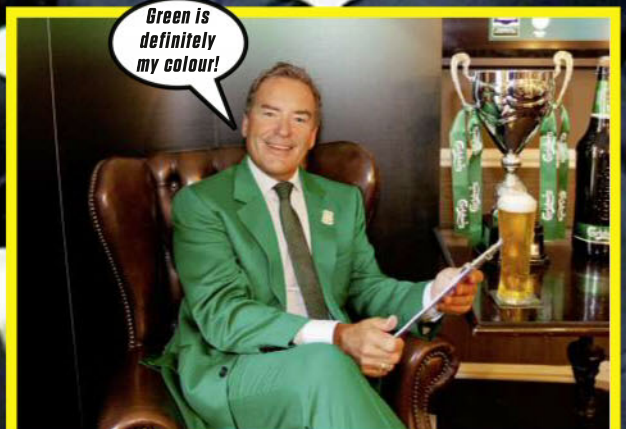

ONLY GOING TO GET WORSE!

Jose Mourinho vs Arsene Wenger

"They couldn't have started the season any worse after Wenger's handshake snub at the Community Shield. Jose clearly sees Arsene as a target to wind up and it got really bad last season with their bit of handbags on the touchline. Arsene is seen as the serene, mild-mannered one so to see him turn street fighter was a laugh out loud moment. But with him getting Petr Cech and the Community Shield win, the boot may now be on the other foot."

→ Jeff Stelling was speaking following the launch of Carlsberg's "If Carlsberg Did Kickabouts" TV ad. The new ad, the latest in the "If Carlsberg did" campaign, celebrates the start of the new season and Carlsberg's partnership as the official beer of the Barclays Premier League. Search #IfCarlsbergdid

DOUBLE-DUTCH WAR!

Louis van Gaal vs Ronald Koeman

"Van Gaal and Koeman are both big opinionated fellas with an intense dislike of each other – and it was even worse when Southampton won at Old Trafford and LVG couldn't bring himself to give Koeman any credit. I think he was concerned last season that Koeman – with a smaller budget – could finish above him. He spent big and will be under pressure again this season. I can see this clash developing."

DON'T MESS WITH BILIC!

Slaven Bilic vs Steve McClaren

"Bilic scares the pants off me and I don't think many managers will want to square up to him. He was an outspoken part of McClaren's England demise, but a lot of water's passed under the bridge. McClaren has proved his quality and his biggest issue is going to be his chairman. Bilic, however, is coming into his old club and will be expected to change the style of play immediately, so I can see him on the touchline with steam coming from his ears!"

LANGUAGE BARRIER!

Brendan Rodgers vs Mauricio Pochettino

"Rodgers' quote about Spurs spending a lot of money keeps getting thrown back at him. It was a different set-up there when he made the comment but both managers are under pressure and will be fighting for the same top-four spot. One thing that will stop this row from escalating is the language barrier with Pochettino's reluctance to speak English. It's a good tactic to avoid getting involved in any debates."

HAPPY, SMILEY PARDEW!

Alan Pardew vs Manuel Pellegrini

"These two have a history of touchline verbals but I saw Alan a few weeks ago and that tormented angry man liable to explode at any time has gone. He was as happy as I've ever seen him and that was before he started signing anyone! Last season, he said he could do as well as any of the managers in the top four and I think that was a swipe at Pellegrini. He has a chance to prove it, so expect him to be the smilest manager on the touchline."

The BFG halts a Chelsea attack!

Five leaders

"There might not be a Tony Adams or Sol Campbell to lead the backline, but they now have a back four and keeper who can build a good understanding. You don't need a dominant leader if you have a rearguard who all feel equal, and any one of them can step forward during moments of pressure and organise their defensive formation."

Calm keeper

"Petr Cech was a massive signing for the club, because he's a top keeper who brings experience and calmness to the team. That cool head comes from having the confidence that when your back four does get penetrated, you have a reliable stopper to get you out of trouble."

Nigel Winterburn explains...

The workings of a title-winning defence

The three-time champion left-back runs the rule over his former team's rearguard – and reveals why they might finally have the backline to go all the way again...

First line of defence

"Alexis Sanchez came into the side and brought with him the Barcelona way of hassling defenders. His work rate and ability to win back the ball was infectious and encouraged the people around him to go and do the same. What Arsenal started doing even better last season was being organised enough to drop back into a solid formation if they didn't win the ball back straight away."

Parking the parade bus

"Arsene Wenger is a very offensive manager. He likes his style of football to speak for itself, but you have to look at it at times and ask, 'What do we have to do defensively to keep us in the game?' The Gunners have finally realised that and are starting to work on it. You have to give them credit for completely changing their style against some of the bigger teams last season and coming away with the result, just like they did at Manchester City."

Palace banana skin

"If Arsenal are going to be genuine title contenders, they can't afford any early slip-ups. You can't lose a few games at the start of the season and then come on strong at the end, or afford a big dip one month, as they've been prone to previously. The first of these potential banana skins will be at Selhurst Park. Alan Pardew has made some excellent signings there with Yohan Cabaye, Connor Wickham and Patrick Bamford and they now look like a side that will pick up a considerable amount of points. They'll also drop a good amount as well, and you'd expect Arsenal to still be too strong for them."

"Francis Coquelin was very strong for the team towards the end of last season, but he has got to be at that level and better this season to prove he can be the long-term solution in that role. If Arsenal have someone in front of the back four doing the amount of work he does, then that's a huge plus, defensively speaking."

"Burgess can be England"

The England legend tells ZOO why fellow rugby league convert Sam Burgess can follow in his World Cup-winning footsteps

Setting the bar high

"I've got a lot of respect for Sam Burgess. He was fantastic in rugby league and could have stayed at the very top, but he decided to make the switch to union and look for a new challenge. After I made the same switch in 2000, I set the bar quite high because things worked out so well for me. Coming into union now is no easy thing, but I think he's done really well."

Hungry for success

"With the World Cup coming only 10 months after Sam made the switch to union, people might say it's come too soon. But I know it can be done, because I was playing for England three months after making my switch. I know Sam as a person, and he's hungry for success and will work as hard as possible to get it. He has the right attitude.

"Let's not forget he went from one season straight into another, so he's played a lot of games and that takes a lot out of you, especially when you're coming into a new game and trying to find out how best to utilise your qualities. Just to be in the training squad and around England's best players shows his calibre."

England's battering ram

"Converting was a lot easier for me because it was a case of, 'I'm a winger, so I will play wing or full-back'. For him, he was a forward in league and there's been a lot of chopping and changing. There is quite a difference between a forward in league and union: it's like chalk and cheese. At Bath, he's learned to play as a flanker, which is certainly not easy. But the more positions he can play in, the more it should help his – and England's – cause.

"Stuart Lancaster has said he'll only consider him as a centre, and that's where I'd like to see him play as well. At 6ft 5in and 17-and-a-half stone, he's a big, strong unit and has good pace. I'd like to see him used as a battering ram, a bit like England used Manu Tuilagi. Sam has certainly got all the qualities and physical attributes to do that."

Wild card entry

before the World Cup starts, and if he doesn't quite make the cut after the upcoming warm-up games, that doesn't mean the door is closed on his World Cup dreams for good.

"In every tournament, there are always injuries and an extra six or seven players who aren't picked in the initial squad will have to be ready to step in at a moment's notice. Being part of the development squad means he's always got a wild card."

Five reasons why Spieth's our guy!

Ahead of the PGA Championship, ZOO looks at why golf's new likeable superstar, Jordan Spieth, deserves your support...

He loves junk food

After the 22-year-old was this year handed the green jacket, famously given to each Masters champion, he took his family and friends for a rare treat – a visit to fast food restaurant chain Chick-fil-A, where Spieth had spent his high school days hanging around.

The only catch? The chain doesn't open on Sundays, the traditional day of The Masters finale. But not to worry: it seems a Masters win is all you need for bosses to grant you Sunday dining rights.

Nothing phases him

On the eve of the biggest round of his life – the Saturday night before he won The Masters – instead of studying yardage, predicting pin placement and replaying holes in his head, the golfer turned to what he called

And, before his first PGA win at the age of 20, he warmed up with a game of ping-pong while a rain delay held up play.

Golf is his second sport

His love for baseball, especially the Texas Rangers, goes back a long way – even if he did lose his two front teeth, aged four, after dropping a stray ball in the crowd.

His love for golf did come at a young age though, when his mother, Chris, bought him a plastic set of clubs to pass the time while she was looking after his younger brother, Steven.

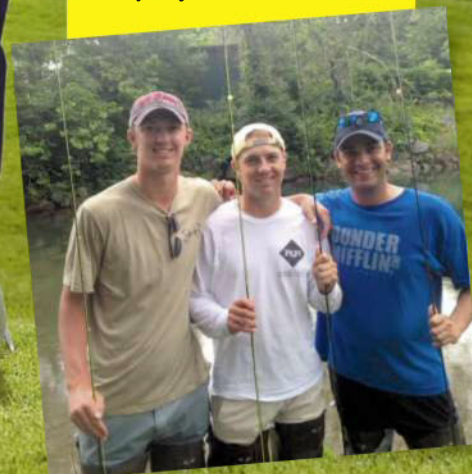

He's a cowboy

The world No2 might have the planet at his feet, but he has never let it go to his head and his Texan roots remain very important to him. He's the proud owner of four pairs of cowboy boots and regularly attends country music events, where he even dons a cowboy hat. He considered it a privilege to play with country music star Jake Owen (above, right) at a pro-am charity competition.

Family comes first

If you have a conversation with Spieth about the major influences on his career, he will always say one thing: family. His younger sister Ellie, who was born with autism, has inspired him more than any coach. Spieth speaks to her every day when he is away on tour and ensures his brother Steven, a promising college basketball player, is present at every Major.

Football's most powerful agent!

The story behind Jorge Mendes – football's No1 deal maker...

Jorge Mendes' wedding guestlist was a who's who of world football. In the same week, he was also finalising a deal to end Angel Di Maria's Manchester misery, bringing the Argentinian dribbler's combined transfer fees to and from the North West to a mammoth £105m!

So who is this super-agent – and how on Earth did he become so powerful?

PLAYERS IN BARS!

The failed footballer-turned-nightclub-owner signed his first client when he was drinking in one of his bars. Mendes helped little-known keeper Nuno move from Vitoria to Deportivo de La Coruna and never looked back.

THE WORLD'S BEST!

Mendes spotted a raw 17-year-old called Cristiano Ronaldo, and oversaw all of his transfers. He now has a £1bn release clause in his Real Madrid contract. Ronnie's thanks? He bought him a Greek island...

FERGIE'S FAVOURITE!

He formed an unshakeable relationship with Sir Alex Ferguson during Ronaldo's time at Old Trafford. Sir Alex was happy to take Anderson, Nani and even Bebe – the only player he'd never seen play – from his roster. Fergie claimed, "Mendes is the best agent I dealt with". Big words.

CLIENT AND CUSTOMER!

Since leaving Porto in 2004, each of Jose Mourinho's moves have been looked after by Mendes, and he has constantly used him to facilitate the moves of his players to the clubs he's managed, including Ricardo Carvalho, Di Maria, Diego Costa, and Radamel Falcao.

HE RUNS PORTUGAL!

A prospectus for one of his third-party ownership funds boasted Mendes – in the decade to 2010 alone – was responsible for 78 per cent of Sporting Lisbon's earnings of £70m, 51 per cent of Benfica's £85m deals, and 70 per cent of Porto's £189m in transfers.

MENDES' BIGGEST CLIENTS

CRISTIANO RONALDO

Sporting Lisbon to Man United – £12m
Man United to Real Madrid – £85m

SERGIO AGUERO

Independiente to Atletico Madrid – £17m
Atletico Madrid to Man City – £38m

JAMES RODRIGUEZ

Banfield to Porto – £3.6m
Porto to Monaco – £31m
Monaco to Real Madrid – £56m

ANGEL DI MARIA

Rosario to Benfica – £4m
Benfica to Real Madrid – £17m
Real Madrid to Man United – £59.7m
Man United to PSG – £44.3m

RADAMEL FALCAO

River Plate to Porto – £2.7m
Porto to Atletico Madrid – £28.1m
Atletico Madrid to Monaco – £42m
Monaco to Man United – Loan
Monaco to Chelsea – Loan

DIEGO COSTA

Atletico Madrid to Chelsea – £32m
